

MORNING APPEAL.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1878

A WORD ABOUT THE PRIMARIES TO-DAY.

The biennial effort and duty of the Republicans of Ormsby County devolve upon them to-day. No doubt there will be enough of contest to make things lively. It is well that the party be subjected, periodically, to these struggles between its aspiring members. Parties, like individual men, need to take enough of exercise to set their blood in healthy circulation. The eagerness of rivalry and the effort of competition attest the vitality of the organization and the value of its choice. The essential which, of all others, needs to be observed in such contests as this, is the purity and integrity of the vote. Let no man be permitted to take part unless he is of the organization. They who are not of the party but whose participation is sometimes insisted upon are men who present themselves at the primaries with a mental reservation if not a distinct avowal of their purposes not to support certain persons in the event of their receiving nominations. These are not, in a strict and fair interpretation, members of the party. They have a right to exercise their independence; but they debate themselves, a priori, of a right to participate in the deliberations of any party. To put it in another light, such non-partisans should be conceded the right to vote at the primaries of both parties or be debarred from both. They reserve the right to nominate their own candidates. No man not bound by the action of the party has any more moral right to interfere in its councils than he has to take part in the doings of a society or order to which he does not belong. Of course no known Democrat will be permitted to take any part in this Republican election. The theory and presumption of such contests as these, are, that they are entirely fair and honest; and so far as the party itself is concerned, conclusive. Something might very properly be said as from the personal standpoint of the writer—being known to be a candidate for a nomination at the hands of the Republican State Convention. But inasmuch as there are other candidates for State office, whose claims are in all respects as good if not better than his, and who have quite as much right as he has to the services and influence of a Republican newspaper, he prefers to take his chances and lot with the rest. Fair-play is a jewel; let us have nothing else. Ormsby County presents the best and most effective Republican organization in the whole State. Let it be the pride of the active and ardent members of the party to sustain for our County this most excellent name and character. Let us struggle, each man or interest for the cause and the personal aims lying nearest to ourselves, entertaining no determination which in any manner conflicts with an honest resolve to stand by the nominees of the party, whoever they may be. This is partisanship—without which organization and discipline are impossible. Let us remember that it is by loyalty to one another, and by that course alone, that we can best promote the general welfare of the party. The way to ensure satisfactory results is for every member of the party to take a hand in these preliminary elections. Supineness and non-action, born of cynicism, selfishness and indolence, can neither help themselves nor aid their friends. Action, courageous, zealous, manly action, this alone brings positive results, ensuring victory and promoting the welfare of the party. Let no man complain of results in the attainment of avoidance of which he has denied himself a voice; let all acquiesce in results toward which they have signified, in advance, a resolution to be governed by. And out of this germ of good faith shall grow the flower and fruit of Republican triumph.

THE DOG AND THE VINE.

Says the Eureka Leader of Saturday evening:

In this land of desolation, where plants refuse to grow, and the soil is barren of vegetation save the hardy sagebrush, there is one vine that flourishes luxuriantly and climbs the porch of a dwelling, its hardy growth the envy of the neighborhood. It was but a weak, sickly plant at first, but a short time since it took a new life and almost eclipsed the fabled bean-stalk. Thereby hangs a tale, and there is bound to be a fight when the next door neighbor reads this item. The latter owned a dog, a hunting dog, a full-blooded hunter; he hunted all the time and made a business of it. The owner of the vine had a bone mania, and used to plant bones at the foot of his shrub, in the hopes of starting them to life. The dog hunted those bone deposits and dug them up. He unearthed every dogged bone, and in many instances, to accomplish his purpose, he dug up the morning glory, mignonette and jasmine, leaving them to wither and die, while all the bones would be carried off by the hunter. That sort of business, after a while, made the owner of the vine frantic. He had his revenge, however, for he took that fine dog, cut off his tail about three feet from the end, and then laid him away beneath that particular vine, mentioned in the outset of this item. This was about two weeks since. That vine began to grow; in fact, is growing still. It has clambered up the porch and over the roof, and the owner of the dog leans over the fence, feasts his eyes on its beauty, sniffs up its fragrance, remarks: "Isn't it strange how it does shoot up?" "Isn't it must be in 'sile,' and then inquires of the vine man if he has seen his hunting dog.

GOUGING AND KNIFING.

The Ward Reflex of Saturday last has the following particulars of a tough fight in that City of the East:

Early Wednesday morning Geo. Hill and Jake Repp became involved in a game of cards in Hollowell's saloon, which culminated in a "rough and tumble." After a few passes had been made Repp stumbled over a water barrel and fell to the floor. Hill seized upon the advantage thus offered, got his thumb in Jack's eye, which he nearly tore from its socket, and soon forced his prostrate victim to request that he be taken off, which request was finally complied with. That ended it for the time being, and Repp went to bed. We were informed that Hill was by no means satisfied with the result and throughout the day made numerous threats which he proposed to put into execution at the first opportunity. About 7 o'clock the following evening Repp appeared at the door of the saloon, where the little unpleasantness had taken place in the morning. Hill was on hand and commenced the application of numerous opprobrious epithets in fact became abusive to the last degree, when Repp went for him, but was stood off for a time with chairs, one of which knocked him down. Undaunted, he returned to the charge and forced Hill to retreat into Foster's saloon, where he closed with Hill, drew a knife and ran it through the latter's left arm between the shoulder and elbow. Hill lost all interest in the fight after this and ran out of the saloon. Thus ended what at one time promised more serious results. Hill was taken to Dr. Olsen's office, where his wound was dressed. The knife entered from the lower side of the arm while in a raised position, inflicting a wound almost two inches in length. All agreed that Hill was the aggressor from the start, while Repp evinced a disposition to avoid an altercation.

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 9.—Irregularities are reported in the Manufacturers' Gas Company, of which Charles P. Stickney, until within a few weeks, has been the Treasurer. Stickney had nearly full control of the company's affairs. Some time ago he was asked to resign. The fact so worked on him that on Saturday morning he became thoroughly prostrated, and it was feared he would die. The defalcation is placed at from $50,000 to $100,000.

Constantinople, Sept. 8.—Mehemet Ali Pasha, who was sent to pacify Albania, was mobbed at Yazona, sixty-seven miles north-east of Scutari. He fled the place and took refuge in a shed, but was pursued by the Albanians, who called upon him to organize an attack against the Austrians. He refused, and was with twenty members of his suite massacred.

Philadelphia, September 9.—Interest in the Russian cruisers is revived by the news that the Cimbrina, with her sailors, will arrive next week, and that the Yazoo is fitting up as a training ship. As soon as the Cimbrina arrives a trial trip of the Europa will take place. On Thursday evening Cramp, the ship-builder, will give a reception to the Russian officers, which will be a very fine affair.

New York, September 6.—Agents in this city for Southern firms say that business is at a standstill with Tennessee, Louisiana and Mississippi. The Southern trade has been as suddenly swept away as many of the victims of the plague.

New York, Sept. 9.—The Tribune has the following: Gold has been found in the island of New Guinea, and the Australian newspapers are calling for its immediate annexation by the English Government. Attention is invited to the fact, however, that for more than a century a part of the western coast has been claimed by Holland; that the tract was taken possession of in the name of the King of Netherlands, and that the acquisition was saluted by a British man-of-war.

THE BODIE BANK.—The Tri-weekly Standard of September 7 has the following allusion to the Bodie Bank:

On the west side of Main street, directly opposite Wells, Fargo & Co.'s office and the Postoffice, the owners and directors of The Bodie Bank have erected a neat and attractive looking building for their use. The interior has been finished in a comfortable and convenient manner, and consists of a front office, containing counters, desks, safe, etc. In the rear of the business department a neatly fitted up Directors' room opens from the main hall, and a sleeping apartment in the rear of safe for the cashier. The fittings and furnishings are of a solid and substantial character, and the whole establishment is a credit to Bodie or any other mining camp. The Directors of the bank are Wm. Irwin, Geo. Gillson, O. T. Barber, Fred Warnke, J. M. Dawley and F. B. Hessel. The officers are Wm. Irwin, President; Geo. Gillson, Vice President, and Wm. M. Pope, Cashier. The latter gentleman is well known throughout Idaho and Montana as having been engaged in banking business there, and has many friends and acquaintances here and elsewhere.

DISTRESSING ACCIDENT.—The Elko Independent of Saturday narrates a painful accident as follows:

Yesterday, while engaged in threshing grain at his ranch in Clover Valley in this county, our esteemed friend, Isaac Wiseman, brother to County Commissioner Wiseman, accidentally got one of his hands literally torn to atoms by a threshing machine. This morning Mr. Wiseman came to Elko on the west bound train for surgical relief. Drs. Meigs and Huntington skillfully amputated the hand between the elbow and shoulder, and the sufferer is now as comfortable as could be expected. Mr. Wiseman is an old and respected resident of Elko county and his painful injury will be a matter of general regret.

THE BODIE STANDARD has undergone the contemplated change of proprietors. Mr. Frank Kenyon retires and Messrs. Haines & Elliot succeed. Both these gentlemen are experienced writers and will keep the Standard up to its well-established level.

THE REPUBLICANS of Nye through their County Central Committee, after receiving Gen. Connor's letter requesting them to rescind their instructions in his behalf, expressed themselves as follows:

Resolved, That in obeying the wishes of our constituents, we have done nothing that we wish to retract, nothing to rescind, nothing to annul.

Resolved, That we except our delegates to the State Convention to obey to wishes of the Republicans of Nye County as already expressed, and sacredly to observe the instructions given to them.

It was moved and carried, unanimously, that the proceedings of this meeting be published in the Belmont Courier and Tybo Sun.

That looks as if the Republicans of Nye were pretty much for Connor.
